

Jonathan A. Morell (Jonny) spends his professional life integrating across practitioner and theoretical interests. As a practitioner he evaluates organizational change, R&D, and safety programs. He is also heavily involved in designing and managing organizational change, and in developing tactics for his evaluation and organizational change interests to support each other. His theoretical interests include the nature and use of logic models, the role of Lean Six Sigma methodologies in evaluation, complex system behavior, and the nature of practical action. He is the editor of the international journal Evaluation and Program Planning, published by Elsevier. Jonny is active in the American Evaluation Association, where he has been instrumental in founding two of their topical interest groups -- Systems and Business and Industry. He is a recipient of their Marcus Ingle Distinguished Service Award. Jonny is a Senior Policy Analyst at the Vector Research Center, a division of TechTeam Government Solutions. His PhD in Psychology is from Northwestern University.
